PRS Provider's Commentary (as at 31 December 2024)

US equity declined in December amid profit takings and fears mounting over rising rates. Within the Asia Pacific markets, South Korea's KOSPI Index declined on political uncertainty which disrupted market confidence. India equities also fell due to weak rupee and slower domestic growth concerns. Meanwhile, Taiwan's TWSE Index and Hong Kong's Hang Seng Index ended the month higher. ASEAN was mixed, with Malaysia and Straits Times Index going up, while others declining. Moving into 2025, equities markets would remain volatile, amid elevated geopolitical and trade tensions and we will look for opportunities to buy into companies that have strong cash flows.
